

Norma S. Saks, Ed.D

Norma Susswein Saks, Ed.D, Professor of Psychiatry, Assistant Dean for Educational Programs and Director of the Cognitive Skills Program at Rutgers Robert Wood Johnson Medical School (RWJMS), completed her undergraduate degree at Skidmore College, and her Master of Education degree at Boston University. She earned an Educational Specialist's Degree and a Doctorate in Educational Psychology from Rutgers University Graduate School of Education.

She has broad experience in medical education, including undergraduate medical education, graduate medical education and faculty development. She developed the Distinction in Medical Education (DIME) program at Rutgers RWJMS, co-directs the DIME non-credit elective, and has mentored many students in completing required scholarly projects for Distinction in Medical Education. She is co-founder and co-director for the two-year Patient Centered Medicine course. She is co-director of the Rutgers Graduate Certificate in Medical and Health Professions Education. Her interests are in academic support across the continuum of medical education, clinical reasoning, and curriculum development. She currently serves as Chair of the Northeast Group on Educational Affairs and serves on the Board of the International Association of Medical Science Educators (IAMSE).

Keywords

Remediation for the difficult student/resident; curriculum development; humanities in the curriculum; developing clinical reasoning skills