For Parents

Children and teens can feel stress and have mental health issue so parents should be aware of potential warning signs. The American Academy of Pediatrics says don't ignore these observations of your children:

- Changes in sleep habits (sleeping excessively or not getting enough).
- Low self-esteem.
- Losing interest in once-enjoyed hobbies.
- In a sudden reversal, doing poorly in school.
- Losing appetite, or significant weight loss.
- Unusual changes in behavior, such as unexplained aggression or anger.

Encourage people to speak to a trusted person, such as a health care provider, friend, family member, or religious leader.

Bullying and Cyberbullying

Bullying is unwanted, aggressive behavior among school aged children that involves a real or perceived power imbalance. The behavior is repeated, or has the potential to be repeated, over time. Both kids who are bullied and who bully others may have serious, lasting problems. In order to be considered bullying, the behavior must be aggressive, include an imbalance of power, and be repeated. There are three types of bullying: verbal (such as, name calling or teasing); social (such as, spreading rumors about someone or embarrassing them in public); and physical (for example, hitting or kicking or taking or breaking someone’s things).

Cyberbullying is bullying that takes place over digital devices like cell phones, computers, and tablets. Cyberbullying can occur through SMS, Text, and apps, or online in social media, forums, or gaming where people can view, participate in, or share content. Cyberbullying has concerns because it can be persistent, permanent, or hard to notice. Some cyberbullying crosses the line into unlawful or criminal behavior.
