

The HIPHOP Promise Clinic

is a community of medical students supervised by volunteer physicians, who along with community partners are committed to providing free, patient-centered primary care services to the uninsured clients of Elijah's Promise Community Kitchen.

Better Doctors

Healthier Patients

Stronger Communities

Our Patients

Since 2015, Promise Clinic has cared for a total of 134 patients. Today, we serve as the primary care home for 29 active patients, offering a comprehensive set of services.

Our Community

Promise Clinic grew out of a 2005 needs assessment that found that 1 in 3 patrons of Elijah's Promise did not have access to health care. We are committed to providing care to those underserved in our New Brunswick community, where 29% are uninsured and 35% live below the federal poverty level.

“Promise Clinic is more accommodating, cares more, and asks more questions about me.”

Our Model

Through a team-based, longitudinal model Promise Clinic is dedicated to increasing access to health care at every level.

- Community Care: Public health workshops and health screenings in the community.
- Transitional & Urgent Care: Walk-in access for acute issues. Assistance with finding a primary care provider, insurance, and navigating our health care system.
- Health Maintenance: Regular appointments for maintaining a healthy lifestyle.
- Chronic Care: Intensive, longitudinal management of chronic health concerns.

Help us keep our promise: your contribution to the Promise Clinic Endowment helps to secure the future health of our patients and community.
